

Greetings CASB Families!

We hope this newsletter finds you well. We have some exciting updates and important announcements to share with you all:

Starting our First Project: Podcasts about Habitats

This week, we are thrilled to begin our first project of the semester! Our students will be recording podcasts about habitats, specifically the ones we have observed on our campus. This project will allow our students to delve deeper into the wonders of nature and showcase their creativity and knowledge.

Appropriate Clothing for Outdoor Activities

As we plan to explore the habitats on our campus, it is essential for your child to come to school prepared with appropriate clothing for outdoor activities. Please ensure that your child is dressed in comfortable attire and has suitable outerwear to stay warm. If you are unable to find appropriate clothing for your students, please do not hesitate to reach out to us. We are here to support you.

Teacher Professional Development Day on Friday, February 9

We have a teacher professional development day on Friday, February 9. On this day, students will participate in an e-learning day, which is an Orange Day. Your child's teacher will provide further instructions and assignments for this day, my assignments will be on Canvas for students.

Celebrations from the Week

We had remarkable weather this week while our students compared and contrasted the three different habitats here at CASB. They put in great effort and showcased their skills in creative and informative ways. We are proud of their hard work and look forward to listening to their podcasts.

Spring is on Its Way!

According to Punxsutawney Phil, spring is just around the corner! With the anticipation of warmer days, let's hope that El Nino doesn't interfere with our outdoor plans. We'll keep our fingers crossed for perfect weather as we venture into the habitats.
